Look around, can you find a pattern that is made up of lines?

1. Go on a line hunt around your kāinga / home or garden. Try looking under tables, in bushes, along fences and on shelves. Where else could you look?
2. Capture the lined patterns you see by taking photos of them. Can you find crossed lines? gridded lines? straight lines? tangled lines?

Look at this line sculpture created by Peter Robinson. What types of line has he used?

Photography tip – try taking photos from different points of view – e.g. from below, from above or from the side.
